AXIS LEADERS REACH DEFINITE PLAN OF ATTACK ON BRITAIN

REPORT TRIPLE ALLIANCE PACT HOLDS SECRETS

Arrangement For Blitzkrieg Against England on Three Fronts Included.

SET TENTATIVE DATE

Japan's Interests In East Approved by Axis, Says Diplomatic Source.

(By United Press)

LONDON—A high diplomatic source—neither British nor Chinese but vitally interested in the Far East—reported today that the new triple alliance joining Japan to the Rome-Berlin Axis contains secret clauses setting forth Japan's potential gains in the Orient and tentatively providing for Japanese entry into the war against Great Britain.

This source expressed belief that Germany, Italy and Japan would deny existence of any secret clauses, but other foreign diplomats and Far Eastern experts who are questioned on the subject said that there was reason to credit the reported arrangement.

It was suggested that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, at their Brenner Pass meeting, sought to determine a definite date for a "triple blitzkrieg" against the British empire in Europe, Africa and the Far East with the aid of Japan and to agree on its tactical aspects.

The alleged confidential provisions of the triple alliance were described as follows:

1—Germany and Italy agree—assuming they are victorious—to use their influence to facilitate Japan's annexation of the Dutch East Indies and of French Indo-China after the war.

2—Germany and Italy express readiness to mediate peace between Japan and China and in a sense favorable to Japan. It was

VISIT PLANNED

Windsors Still Expect Trip to United States.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Capt. Vyvyan Drury, aide to the Duke of Windsor, says the duke and his duchess will visit the United States "as soon as official duties permit."

"It should be emphasized," the captain said yesterday, "that no specific plans have as yet been made, and no date for the trip has been selected. The duchess is very eager however, to visit the United States."

The American-born duchess is the former Wallis Warfield of Baltimore. The duke, now governor of the Bahamas, has not been in this country in 16 years.

MANY THANKS

Hunter Shoots Deer, and Would Gladly Shoot Thief.

ALTURAS, Cal. — (AP) — Frank Vance had tramped all day without sighting a deer. As he started for home, he saw a large buck, but quite a distance away. He fired and the deer fell.

Vance was tired and he rested occasionally as he went to get the buck. But the animal was gone. Instead, there was a note:

"Thanks for the buck."

Prince Periled

Prince Starhemberg

In exile in England, Prince Rudiger von Starhemberg, above, former vice chancellor of the now extinct Austria, had a narrow escape from death in London when a German bomb demolished the house next to that occupied by him. Starhemberg barely escaped with his life when Hitler took over Austria.

3 FUGITIVES ELUDE CAPTURE

Glattke Says Investigation Reveals 12 Others Linked In O. S. R. Break.

Three fugitives who abducted a girl to aid their daring escape from the Ohio state reformatory Thursday were still at large today while Supt. Arthur L. Glattke continued an investigation into the break plot.

The inmates, John E. Smith, 21, and James Hale, 19, both of Cincinnati, and George Primm, 19, Akron, pried a bar from a ground level window adjacent to the west cell block to reach the outside of the prison.

They seized the car of a girl waiting for her parents who were visiting the institution, and forced her to drive them to Mifflin where she was released unharmed. They stole at least two other machines in their flight.

Glattke said today that questioning of prisoners revealed that 12 others had also tried to escape, but stopped when they say a guard arrive at the opening in the window through which the three other inmates had crawled onlya few minutes before.

He said he had not completed his investigation.

The window bars were repaired yesterday, the superintendent said.

DAYLIGHT RAID HITS RAILROAD

Line Used for Massing German Troops Wrecked by RAF.

LONDON—(U.P.)—British Bristol-Blenheim bombers, in daylight raids yesterday, wrecked a railroad line outside Cherbourg, France, used by the Germans for bringing up supplies, the air ministry said in a communique today.

"Direct hits left rails twisted and useless with big craters in the tracks," the communique said. "A hangar nearby also was damaged. Another successful attack was made on the German-occupied airdrome at Bleville, Near Le Havre, where direct hits set one of the hangars ablaze."

BOARD LISTS 181 TO SERVE DURING DRAFT

Announces Names of Clerks To Serve In 92 Precincts On Registration Day.

SERVE WITHOUT PAY

17,000 Forms Sent to County To Be Filled Out Oct. 16 By Registrants.

The Richland county board of elections today announced the names of 181 persons who have been appointed to handle the registration of men from 21 to 35 under the conscription law on Oct. 16.

Two registration clerks were named by the board in 90 of the county's 92 voting precincts. Appointment of clerks for the other two precincts will be made within a few days, election board officials said.

Most of the clerks were chosen from the regular voting booth workers in the precincts. It was expected that a few of the appointees will not be able to serve because of other duties and will have to be replaced. The clerks will serve without pay.

Approximately 17,000 registration cards had been mailed to the county election board today by the state selective military service office.

Questions on the cards relate to the age, health, employment, citizenship, and next of kin of the men who will be required to register at their voting booths.

Registration will be required of about 860,000 young men in Ohio, but only a small part of them will be called for military training this fall.

Names of 27 Richand countians recommended for appointment to county draft boards, advisory committees and draft appeals posts will be forwarded to Washington

BARNES RESIGNS

Cites Ill Health In Leaving Election Board Post.

T. R. Barnes, Mansfield, member of the Richland county board of elections had submitted his resignation today to Secretary of State George Neffner, giving ill health as his reason for resigning.

Barnes, who was appointed to the board only last April, became ill during the summer and was taken to a Marion sanitarium. He has since returned home.

If Barnes' resignation is accepted, former Mayor Earl McFarland of Mansfield is his likely successor on the election board, it was learned. Barnes, well over 70, has been a Republican leader in the county for a number of years and is one of the two Republican members of the election board.

CHILD'S PRAYER

'Take Good Care of Yourself, God' Refugee Pleads.

MONTREAL — (U.P.) — The Gazette reported today that a six-year-old English refugee, daughter of a British officer, prays nightly:

"Dear God, bless mummy and daddy and all the soldiers and sailors and airmen.

"And Dear God, do take good care of yourself, because if you are bombed, we are sunk."

As Hitler Met With Spanish Envoy In Berlin

Campaign Over, Chamber Membership Hits Peak

107 New Members, 32 More Than Quota, Reached to Give Organization Biggest Rolls In History.

Membership in the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce soared to the highest in history today as the organization concluded its 28th annual membership campaign.

The four-day fall roundup was brought to a close last night with 60 team workers reporting an enlistment of 107 new members to boost the total enrollment to 702.

The campaign, which had a goal of 75 new members, was directed by Robert Remy, chairman of the chamber's membership committee. Paul M. Eliot, past president, was honorary chairman, and John B. Conard was co-chairman.

Chamber enrollment now surpasses by 61 members any previous membership figure. Last year, the membership was 641 and in 1938 it stood at 575.

The campaign was carried on without the leadership of C. L. Van Derau, president, who was called to Dayton on the eve of the drive by the illness of his mother.

In commenting on the results of the campaign, John G. Routzon, secretary-manager, praised the work of the team workers and to Mansfield for its support of the organization.

"When there is a civic job to be done, Mansfielders just step out and do it," he said. "That's the chief reason Mansfield stands today as one of the very best cities of its size in the nation."

The 30 two-man teams will meet Friday night for a "victory" dinner at which time prizes will be

HIGHWAY POST OFFERED SOUR

Akron Man Tipped to Succeed Robert S. Beightler.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Hal G. Sours, of Akron, now assistant state highway director, will succeed Brig. Gen. Robert S. Beightler as state director when the Ohio national guard leaves for duty at Camp Shelby, Miss., about Oct. 15, it was learned today.

General Beightler is expected to be promoted to the rank of major General by Governor Bricker. In such capacity, Beightler would command the 37th division and would succeed Maj. Gen. Gilson D. Light who failed to pass physical examinations of the regular army.

FRESH WORRIES

Congress Faces New Demand For Continued Session.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Fresh demands that congress remain in town to deal promptly with foreign policy and defense problems arose today to trouble leaders hopefully maneuvering for a recess vote Monday or Tuesday.

With the November 5 elections only a month off, however, both senate and house chiefs appeared confident that arrangement would be worked out to permit the session to go home by midweek.

The pressure to keep the session going a while longer came in part from several Republican representatives who urged immediate action to prevent rulings of the labor board from affecting defense contracts. Rep. Taber (R. N. Y.) told the house yesterday that otherwise 30 per cent of the contracts already let might be invalidated.

Meanwhile, since all pending major legislation has been disposed of, many senators anti representatives arranged to leave for their homes this week-end.

NO DRAFT WORRY

Five Sons Join Navy Before Conscription Hits.

HOMER, Ill. — (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Koerner, sr., parents of five sons, aren't worrying about the draft.

WILLKIE TO BE HERE ON OCT. 16

Presidential Nominee to Make 20-Minute Appearance While En Route to Cincinnati.

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican candidate for president, will make a brief talk in Mansfield the morning of Wednesday, Oct. 16, he announced today from Philadelphia.

While plans for his visit here had not been completed today, it was believed he will speak from the rear platform of his train, traveling over the Erie railroad. He is scheduled to be in the city from 9 to 9:20 a. m., going from here to Marion, Springfield, Dayton, Hamilton, and Cincinnati.

The G.O.P. candidate will make a major address in Cincinnati the night of Oct. 16. He will be in Dayton for an hour and a half the same day.

Willkie promised county G.O.P. leaders several weeks ago that he would speak here, but they did not learn until today when he would make his scheduled stop in the city.

He spoke in a number of Ohio cities along Lake Erie early this week enroute east.

President Roosevelt will cross the state next Saturday, speaking in Youngstown, Columbus, and Dayton.

Says County Corn Crop Will Refute Early Forecasts

Richland county's 1940 corn crop will be a pretty good one after all, despite earlier forecasts of a near crop failure, County Agent George B. Ganyard predicted today.

With a major part of the corn already in shock and some of it husked for early use, farmers are finding it is much better than they expected, Ganyard said.

Producers of hybrid seed corn, however, reported that grain has a much higher moisture content than last year which may damage it for planting next spring.

"Heavy frosts held off until late in September, enabling the late corn to develop and ripen," the county agent explained. The boost in the late crop partly offset the earlier losses from drought and an abnormally wet spring, he pointed out.

Despite the late season pick-up in crop prospects, this year's corn production will be far below last year's record crop in the state and county, it was believed.

GAS HEARING

WASHINGTON — (AP) — November 20 has been set by the federal power commission for a hearing on a motion by Cleveland and Akron for an order directing that the Hope Natural Gas company reduce by $662,000 a year its rates for natural gas sold to its affiliate, the East Ohio Gas company, for resale in the two cities.

Italian Press Continues to Scold America

Nazi Planes Streak Across Channel to Start Aerial Warfare's 5th Week; British Fliers Given Rest From Nightly Forays.

(By Associated Press)

Authoritative sources in Berlin hinted today that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini had decided upon a definite plan of action against England at their Brenner Pass conference yesterday.

While a German spokesman observed that "England is vulnerable in many places" and that a blow "will be struck somewhere," the Italian press continued to scold the United States for its British sympathies and included the Turks as enemies of the Axis powers.

Starting the fifth week of the aerial siege of London, Nazi planes streaked in force across the Kent coast. Eight German planes, the British said, had fallen by mid-afternoon.

The Italian high command, reporting on the war in Africa, claimed that speedy Italian columns had routed British tank and armored car units southeast of Sidi Barrani, Egypt, after days of apparent inactivity on that front.

The German spokesman who commented on the Brenner Pass conference emphasized the fact that Hitler and Mussolini were absolutely alone during part of their three-hour talk.

The same note was struck by Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, who declared the operations of the Axis would now be intensified.

Some observers expressed fear the war might be extended to the eastern Mediterranean, since Turkey, like Greece in the past, has now been berated by the Italian press.

Greece manned her defenses on the Albanian border and Turkey took extraordinary emergency measures—ordering the sale of all stocks of goods in customs and warehouses within 80 days, increasing the number of working hours on railways and in major

POLICY: America 'Arms Fast, Says Little' In Jap Dispute

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The administration today adopted an "arm fast but say little" policy as abuse poured in upon America from Rome, Berlin and Tokio.

But legislators on Capitol Hill were more vocal. Brindling under the attacks, they declared that this country would continue to uphold its rights in all parts of the world, despite threats of war.

Center of attention in both executive and legislative departments of the government was the dramatic interview given International News Service in Tokio yesterday by Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka of Japan. He declared that if this country insisted upon maintaining the "status quo" in the Orient—thus blocking Nippon's expansionist program—or went to the active aid of Britain against Europe's "Axis powers"—that would mean war.

Two points in Matsuoka's statement attracted sardonic smiles in Washington.

One was his statement that America's upholding of the "status quo" was a cause for war. Little more than four months ago, it was recalled, when Holland's defeat raised the question of sovereignty over the Dutch East Indies, it was Japan who demanded of the western powers that the "status quo" in the East should be respected.

Then Japan, Great Britain and the United States all publicly affirmed their loyalty to the "status quo." Secretary of State Hull took the opportunity to point out that this policy was definitely in line with the four-power pact of 1921.

The second cause of a rather grim type of amusement was Matsuoka's statement that Japan's "national honor" had been pledged to uphold the present "Axis" program and that it had no other choice. Nineteen years ago, at the Washington conference of 1921, observers recalled, Japan's "national honor" was pledged through the nine power and four power pacts, respectively, not to do just what it is doing now—invading China and French' Indo-China.

While officials at the state department read Matsuoka's words with intense interest but offered no quotable comment, legislators were less reserved.

"I feel sure," said Sen. Wheeler

BATTLE: Eight Nazi Planes Shot Down In 3-Hour Fight

LONDON—(AP)—At least eight German planes were destroyed when about 70 bombers and fighters crossed the Kent coast this morning, the British press association reported.

There was a three-hour battle between two waves of raiders and RAF interceptor planes. Three of the German planes were seen to dive into the channel, the press association reported.

The mass thrusts at the Kent coast apparently aimed at London up up the Thames estuary marked the start of London's fifth week of unrelenting air siege.

In East London, three bombs fell, shortly before Minister of Home Security Herbert Morrison and Shelter Director Admiral Edward R. G. R. Evans toured battered areas there.

Until a British fighter patrol cleared the skies, Morrison and Evans kept to refuge in a shelter crowded with 1,000 Londoners.

A government communique described Nazi night attacks as on a "restricted scale," and said that although some were killed "casualties in all areas were few."

Altogether the Nazis were said to have dropped bombs on 66 districts throughout central and greater London and the strategic southeast triangle.

The air ministry reported three raiders shot down during the day and night, with one British plane missing on patrol duty.

The Royal Air Force is operating now under a new leader, 47-year-old Sir Charles Portal, head of the RAF bomber command, who became air chief marshal in a surprise shuffle.

His former chief, Sir Cyril Newhall, who built the modern RAF, was named last night to the key post of governor general of New Zealand in the South Pacific.

What happens to a letter when you drop it in the box, and all about a man with nearly 700 locks. . . .

These are just the lead-offs, just the key to the ignition of your News-Journal in tomorrow's big edition. What happens to the letter is told in photographs, while the lock collector's story makes some pungent paragraphs.

It Takes a Man to Really Can.

When it comes to storing produce away in a can, you'll find the really big job is done by a man. In fact, it's done by many men out at O. S. R. where the canning job's the largest, for miles around—by far. Whether you're a 'peter' or a vegetable 'scraper,' you'll want to read about it in your tomorrow's paper.

City's Warm-Hearted When It Gets Started.

Residents of Mansfield are truly tender-hearted. And it's pretty hard to stop them, after they get started. For example, out in Roseland there's a man who learned this charm when the Service league brought him an artificial arm.

Strangers in the city, who come here to work or live, find the heartiest kind of greeting that you could expect to give. A "Welcome Wagon" meets them both in winter and in summer and a club will round up friends for the lonesomest newcomer.

Old-Time Views, Last-Minute News.

These stories all are told with a third picturization of what the city's doing in project education. There are old-time photos of when "T. R." spoke here. There's war news and sports news and comics that will cheer. Features and columns all form the kernel of what you'll want to read in your Sunday News-Journal.

Willkie Invades New York In Drive for Pivotal Votes

GIVES SPEECH ON DEFENSE AT PHILADELPHIA

Hits 'Ghost Tanks and Cars' As Sample of Roosevelt 'On Order' Army.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Republican presidential nominee Wendell L. Willkie begins his quest for New York state's pivotal 47 electoral votes today.

With election day only one month away, Willkie will strike first at Democratic Brooklyn, borough of New York City. Aides hope Willkie's five-speech campaign tonight will help whittle Mr. Roosevelt's 1936 majority of 525,000 down to 300,000.

Since 1900, only once — in 1916 when Charles Evans Hughes was the Republican nominee — has a presidential candidate who carried New York failed on election, and Hughes was beaten by only 23 electoral votes.

Before a crowd of 25,000 to 35,000 in Shibe park at Philadelphia last night, Willkie said that he wanted to "lead the fight for peace" by putting "a job in every home" and mobilizing American industry for the production of armaments.

He asserted that "attack is closer than ever" and that "America is still unsafe." He accused Mr. Roosevelt of an election-year "blundering attempt to cover up the deficiencies in our national defense" by lumping army, navy and air corps equipment which was both "on hand and order." He brought laughter from the crowd when he spoke of "ghost tanks and ghost cars," referring to equipment which was "on order" and not on hand.

"I now say that only production—not orders—can defend us from aggressors," Willkie said. "For seven years, we have also had prosperity on order. The purpose of the Republican party in this crusade is to have prosperity on hand."

As he came to New York for a series of political conferences before beginning his Brooklyn tour at 7:45 p. m. Willkie was starting a 13-day trip through nine states which have 176 of the 266 electoral votes necessary for election. He will visit New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri between now and Oct. 17.

F. D. R. Puts 'Minor Talk' on Radio

HYDE PARK, N. Y. — (U.P.) — President Roosevelt returned to his home today for an address to the "home folks" and the nation that will herald the beginning of the final phase of his drive for a third term.

Mr. Roosevelt will dedicate three new Duchess county schools at 2:45 p. m. His speech will be broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting system and the Blue network of the National Broadcasting company.

White House aides said it would be merely another "dedicatory address. But their decision to put it on the networks in competition with the world series and the Saturday afternoon football games suggested that Mr. Roosevelt may have something more in mind than a speech for the home folks.

On Monday he inspects the Watervliet N. Y., big gun arsenal of the army. Later he will look over the historic Saratoga battlefield and PWA-constructed facilities at Saratoga Spa.

1 Killed, 4 Hurt In Chemical Plant Blast

3 BUILDINGS DAMAGED AT TERRE HAUTE

Manager Declares No Sabotage Suspected In Explosion Friday Night.

(By Associated Press)

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — One man was believed killed and four were hurt in a $100,000 explosion and fire which destroyed three buildings last night at the Commercial Solvents corporation—a big chemical factory dating from the World war.

Thomas Sankey, 50, was missing after the blast and presumed to be dead. He was working in a 200-foot-square alcohol derivatives plant when a 30,000-gallon acetone still blew up and the fire broke out.

Maynard Wheeler, the corporation's Terre Haute producton manager, said he did not suspect sabotage. He said the firm was "not connected directly with any work on the national defense program.

Cause Unknown.

The cause of the blast was not known. Workers said a flash was seen just before the still exploded.

James Roman, 33, working near the still, said Sankey called out to him to shut off the pressure but before he could do so the big vat went to pieces.

Roman and his brother, Joseph, 35, were taken to St. Anthony's hospital, cut and bruised. Tom Doyle, government gauger working next door, and Otto Boyd, a pedestrian, were knocked down, bruised and shocked.

The factory, a cluster of 17 buildings covering 12 city blocks on the banks of the Wabash river, produces whisky and several chemicals obtained mostly by fermentation of corn.

Barberton Police Blame Dispute on Rent for Slaying

BARBERTON — (AP) — Quarrel over rent was blamed by police today for the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Anna Ellis, 36.

Held in connection with the shooting was James Feraro, 50, a neighbor who surrendered at police headquarters.

Police Chief W. T. Daugherty quoted Feraro as saying he turned the gun on Mrs. Ellis and Dominic Cacciola, 46-year-old relief client, as the two sat on a bench in Cacciola's yard.

Cacciola, a tenant on property owned by Feraro, had quarreled with his landlord over payment of rent and had been given a 10-day eviction notice, police said.

RICH BACHELOR KILLS POSTMAN

Becomes Suddenly Deranged, Beats Aged Mother as Police Arrive.

(By Associated Press)

ATLANTA — A bachelor member of a wealthy family who terrorized a residential section, killed a postman and beat his aged mother, was jailed today on a murder charge.

Police Chief J. T. Dailey of suburban Decatur said the man was L. F. Scott, 38, who had suddenly become deranged mentally.

Postman R. C. Woods, jr., 30, was shot seven times. Mrs. L. F. Scott, sr., 80, was in a critical condition.

Dailey said he broke down three doors in the 18-room mansion where Scott lived, after the man barricaded himself.

Mrs. Scott was on the floor, with Scott pummeling her, Dailey asserted, when he broke in.

Scott had been watering the lawn yesterday. He suddenly began firing promiscuously, Dailey declared. The postman was delivering a package to a neighbor.

After shooting Woods, Dailey asserted, Scott broke his rifle across the prone body and threw the barrel at an automobile.

NOTRE DAME TRADITION COMES TO LIFE IN TRIPLE PREMIERE

By DON LINDSAY

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—The tradition that is Notre Dame came to perpetual life in film here last night—and the only proof that was needed of it was the reaction of this city, home of the college that typifies football as no other college in the country does.

The occasion was the premiere of the Warner Brothers' picture "Knute Rockne—All American." Staged simultaneously in three theaters. With as much if not more fanfare than has accompanied any previous premiere.

The picture is a document that tells a story of a great era. It is not primarily a football picture—although it is built around football. It is a story of an American, of a character who will live as long as we have the kind of a country we now have.

* * *

An Irishman plays the part of a Norwegian: that is, Pat O'Brien has the role of Knute Rockne. If Pat—how can you call him anything else—had failed, the picture would have failed. Let it be as Pat would have it, without adjectives—he did not fail.

To anyone who knew Rockne, he does a perfect job. If the reactions of South Bend audience were not enough, you still have the word of Mrs. Rockne — that certainly should be plenty.

There are a great many others in the cast and they all do a job that is more than convincing. But the story of the premiere of "Knute Rockne—All American," is as much the story of how South Bend took it as it is of the picture.

They used four theaters—big ones—to stage it. The stars who were in the picture, as well as a lot who weren't—were there. In those four theaters were 9,000 people. Outside, wishing they were inside, were four times that many. The premiere wound up a week-long show, one that will have South Bend wondering at a great many things for a long time—such as where all the people came from (and South Bend ought to know about crowds). Wherever you looked there were stars or celebrities of one kind or another. But their presence didn't upset the attitude toward the picture. It sold South Bend and, from the studio viewpoint that ought to be enough.

South Bend's premiere was different than the one Mansfield staged for Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came" for a number of reasons, though it wouldn't be strictly true to say, so far as the premiere audiences were concerned, that they were more enthusiastic here.

But Rockne has become a tradition—and apparently the longer he is dead, the greener his memory will grow. For if the great coach was idolized when his teams were knocking over all opposition, he is revered here now. And Notre Dame, of course, is the locale for the picture, whereas Mansfield was not.

How the Rockne tradition has grown with the years is hard to appreciate unless you have been in South Bend recently. Everywhere you turn, you run into a picture of Rockne. Big pictures, little pictures—all sizes of pictures. Pictures in street clothes, pictures in football clothes, close-ups.

Inspired as a part of the build-up for the picture by Warner Brothers press agents. Some of it. But not all—not by any means.

All the press agents of all the movie studios couldn't have stirred up the commotion and enthusiasm apparent here the last three days of this week. Every snatch of conversation you heard on the street was "Remember when 'Rock' did so-and-so?" or "Do you think O'Brien can play the part?" or, if it was after seeing the picture "Did you think O'Brien was good in the Rockne part?"

No press agentry could have made a town so conscious of an event, if the event hadn't had appeal of its own.

And certainly Rockne, and the school his coaching prowess made so widely known had that here.

* * *

The party was a long one—though it is extremely doubtful if the Hollywood contingent thinks of it in terms of "party." They were the hardest-worked crew of personal appearance-ing premiere attendants up to the present writing, without a doubt.

From the time they pulled in Thursday afternoon, to be met at the station by a swarm of South Benders, Notre Dame undergrads, and just plain spectators, they had no time for either plain or fancy sitting.

There was a banquet at the university Thursday night, with a premiere for the student body—first, as they should have been, to see a picture based on the career of their coach and their school. There was a pilgrimage to Rockne's burial place, and no one who knew anything of either Rockne or Notre Dame could have stood there during that ceremony without tingles running up and down his spine. There was a luncheon given by Mayor and Mrs. Jesse I. Pavey at South Bend Country club Friday noon.

Then there was the premier—rather, the premiers with stars dashing between the three theaters. There was a grand ball, at the Palais Royale. And as tickets were ever scarce for a Notre Dame game, they were equally scarce for the dance.

Today there was to be a luncheon for the stars given by the 'C' club, Chicago University alumni, and ceremonies at the Notre Dame-College of the Pacific football game.

After that the cast would go home and relax on the way. They needed to.

4,000 Expected For Boat Races At Pleasant Hill

More than 4,000 are expected to attend the regatta on Pleasant Hill lake tomorrow, the first professional boat races to be sponsored by the recently organized Pleasant Hill Boat club.

Professional boat racers from all over the state are expected to take part in the events, according to Kent Rummel, club president.

This will be the first event for the public on the new water playgrounds that are in the Mansfield area. Rummel said the club hoped to provide a number of similar events for persons in this vicinity interested in water sports.

The club was organized last year and already has a membership of more than a hundred. Members keep their boats anchored in Pleasant Hill lake. The squadron is made up mostly of small power boats and boats for outboard motors.

Tomorrow's races are scheduled for 2 p. m.

Not That It Matters

Wage, Hour Enforcement In Southern States a Job That's Left Undone

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IN a speech to the industrial workers of the Pittsburgh area this week Wendell L. Willkie said that he believed the minimum wages and maximum hours of the National Labor Relations act should be enforced in the South as well as the North.

And in that Mr. Willkie has something. He said that before any changes are made in the act itself there should be a sweeping revision in the manner in which it is administered. The great weakness of the Act has been in the manner in which it has been administered.

The men and women who have been charged with the responsibility of administering it, have merely played political football with it. It is pretty generally enforced in the North, where there are concentrated industrial areas, but the majority of workers in the South never heard of the Labor act, because the politicians don't want them to hear of it.

* * *

LAST June and again in September when we ambled through the Virginias, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky, I asked practically all workers I met if they were affected by the wage and hour law, and most of them didn't know what I was talking about. Waitresses throughout southern Virginia told me they worked 12 hours a day and made $2.50 a week with 50 cents out every week to pay for expensive uniforms. In one very nice restaurant the girls get $1.50 a week and two limited meals. Clerks in stores told me they worked 48 hours a week and made $8.50.

Of course the big, national concerns, such as the tobacco companies and lumber mills, adhere to the Labor act, but the great bulk of workers in the South probably never heard of it. And incidentally, wasn't the Labor act set up largely to protect the poorly paid workers of the South?

The fact that it isn't enforced in the South is not the fault of the legislation itself, but of the administration.

WHEN Ambassador Bullitt returned from France some weeks ago and recommended that we continue to recognize the Vichy government as representing the old France, it seemed to this writer that such a course was fraught with danger—in view of the fact that the Vichy government is a Hitler puppet.

Now comes announcement from the Petain government at Vichy that France will build additional heavy fortifications on the island of Martinique. Martinique (birthplace of Napoleon's Josephine) lies just 1,000 air miles from the Panama Canal and 250 miles from Trinidad. It has two harbors, one large enough for warships, and it is right in line with the proposed air bases the United States will build on English islands to protect the Western hemisphere.

So long as we recognize the Vichy government, we can't legally stop France from building on her own possessions, but after the fortifications and air bases are built, what's to prevent Germany from operating them under the French tricolor?

RICHLAND county paid off its last indebtedness this week, climbing out from under a public debt which reached the peak of two and a half millions in 1925. And this was accomplished by a very simple but entirely outmoded process of living within our income and paying our bills as they came due.

Which is something like treason in these days of spending more money and yet more money in order to . . . well, just in order to.

* * *

NEWS stories this week said that President Roosevelt was much concerned over the behaviour of radicals in the crowds that attend the Willkie rallies, (some of them people on federal payrolls,) who hurled missiles, and in one city at least came very close to killing a young woman.

There can be no doubt that the president is sincere in his concern, as are all real Americans. But such behaviour has one value—it must open our eyes to how far we have departed from the tenets of democracy, how far we have gone down the line with the very principles of dictatorship. We are losing our tolerance along with our sense of fair play and good sportsmanship.

Look at the behaviour of crowds at ball games, boxing matches and other sporting events. We behave like a bunch of spoiled brats, squalling our petulant little heads off when things don't please us.

If Mr. Willkie goes down to defeat in November, he will have this to console him—the egg throwers and the waste paper basket tossers aren't in HIS camp.

THE word "Frontiersman" had to be added to the title of Louis Bromfield's latest picture play "Brigham Young," because, according to theater men, there weren't enough people who knew the name of the Mormon leader. By adding "Frontiersman," the cash customers will get the impression that it's a rip-roaring Westerner.

But then won't there be considerable disappointment if Brigham doesn't sing a stanza and chorus of "O Susannah"?

Add Things You Never Knew 'Til Now: That this part of Ohio was once a part of the Catholic diocese of Quebec, which was a thousand miles away by trail. Which was why the archbishop of Quebec attended the dedication of the new diocese cathedral in Toledo this week.

ITALIAN PRESS CONTINUES TO SCOLD AMERICA

Axis Leaders Reach Definite Plan of Action In Attack Against Britain.

ports and suspending week-end holidays.

Stormy winds and wintry clouds had curtailed the war in the air last night, but the Germans were quick to take up their raids today.

For the first time in weeks the British air force let a night pass without forays into Germany or bomb blows at Nazi-held bases. The nighthawk raids were reported called off because of "extremely unfavorable weather conditions" over the channel and continent.

Lone German bombers attacked several targets in southeastern England, the Midlands and Wales and gave London two alarms during the night, but a British communique said the raids were on a "restricted scale" and casualties few.

The German press was unanimous in declaring that yesterday's Brenner Pass conference between Hitler and Mussolini meant a "new Africa" added to the Axis program for a "new order in Europe," and foresaw intensification of the Mediterranean campaign.

There still was no official disclosure of the topics discussed by the Axis chiefs nor what moves might be taken in the Mediterranean-North African amphitheater of the war.

Rumania Takes Business Control

BUCHAREST, Rumania—(AP)—New steps were taken today to control foreign-owned and managed corporations, including the American-owned Rumanian telephone company.

The new Iron Guard movement appointed commissars to "investigate and supervise" the management of the 50 largest companies in Rumania with foreign connections.

The minister of national economy was empowered to appoint commissars for any other foreign companies he desires.

It was announced that all future dealings in stock of foreign companies may be subject to government approval.

Iron Guard inspectors were appointed to supervise and control 20 of the largest Hungarian-managed corporations in Rumania.

Secret police, investigating the mass executions of Iron Guardists which followed the assassination of Premier Armand Calinescu last year, sought evidence to show that British and French influence was behind the death orders.

It was reliably reported that Gen. George Argeseanu, the succeeding premier, told a court of inquiry that the orders for the mass killings came "directly from (King) Carol."

A military tribunal prepared to place five arrested British subjects, oil field executives, on trial on what informed circles call "very serious charges," presumably asserted attempts to sabotage oil shipments to Germany.

Canadian Army To Reach 500,000

OTTAWA—(AP)—Canada will have an army of 500,000 men on permanent and non-permanent service by next summer, the department of national defense indicated today.

The full-time active service force now numbers about 165,000 men on duty at home and overseas.

The non-permanent active militia, after a recent recruiting drive, numbers nearly 112,000.

Under the national resources mobilization act, 29,750 men will be called into training centers of the non-permanent active militia next Wednesday as the first group of about 240,000 to be summoned in the next 12 months.

New Theater of War Indicated

BERLIN—(AP)—German commentators focused attention today on Africa and the Mediterranean theater of war as they confidently awaited developments expected to grow out of the lastest Brenner Pass rendezvous of Hitler and Mussolini.

The press was ecstatic in predicting great things would happen as a result of the conference and dwelt on the "unity" of Europe and Africa in the "new order" of the totalitarian states.

On one point the newspapers were unanimous—that the Brenner meeting definitely had shaped a picture of a new Europe plus a new Africa.

The National Zeitung of Essen, regarded as having close connections with Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, emphasized—as did other sources—that Britain's fighting front now is extended from the Thames to the Suez canal and that Britain faces world-wide pressure on her empire from the Axis military pact with Japan.

"The most important question before the Brenner conference was the final defeat of England, as in March the main question was elimination of France from the enemy constellation of powers," the National Zeitung said.

Official circles, meanwhile, gave no hint of the direction taken by the Brenner Pass discussions. Nor did they hint at the direction Germany and Italy might take in pressing the campaign for destruction of England's Suez front—whether by a new channel through Greece, through Spain to get at Gibraltar, or through advancement of Italy's presently retarded drive through Egypt.

Neutral observers, in considering the press comments, recalled that Germany rarely tips her hand as to impending action. Before the Norwegian campaign, the press talk was about the Balkans, and before the blitzkrieg through the low countries the talk was about the Mediterranean, just as it was today.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1940

Drive carefully tomorrow—or they'll be saying: "Too bad, but he was such a reckless driver."

Now that the height minimum for recruits has been reduced to five feet, another Napoleon may appear at any moment.

Remember that next Monday is the last day you can register or transfer your registration—unless you are properly registered you cannot vote on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Business Women's Group Grows

OBSERVANCE of National Business Women's week, starting tomorrow and continuing through next Saturday, gives timeliness to the 1940 theme of this organization, "Business Women In a Democracy—Vote!"

The twelve-year development of National Business Women's week has served to greatly extend public knowledge of the purposes of this organization and to increase the influence of this group of employed women in the 1,650 cities in which clubs are maintained, with total membership of more than seventy-three thousand.

During the sixteen years since it was organized, the Mansfield Business and Professional Women's club, an affiliate of the national organization, has been an active participant in many commendable community activities, and, with a present membership exceeding one hundred, exemplifies the fine work of which such an association of women is capable.

Having for its general topic, "Making Democracy Work," and being a non-partisan and non-sectarian organization, club members are giving this month's study to the subject, "Vote Intelligently," with special emphasis on the importance of all women acquainting themselves with local, state and national issues and recognizing the right to vote as a duty and privilege of American citizenship.

The place of women in various kinds of employment, public and private, occupies a considerable part of the program of activities of the organization, which thus performs valuable service in extending the scope of women's work in fields of special adaptability.

The News-Journal joins in the suggestion made by Mayor Locke in his proclamation, asking that "all citizens of Mansfield co-operate in every way to make this week a successful celebration for members of the local club."

Accident Causes and Results

SOME idea of the important service being performed by the state highway patrol is gained from a study of the report of September activities as printed in yesterday's News-Journal.

Persons who have commented on driving long distances without having seen a highway patrolman may also have noted that one of these officers is almost invariably among the first at the scene of an accident, gathering information, aiding the injured, preventing traffic congestion, or otherwise making themselves useful.

The report shows 45 accidents investigated during the month and 97 arrests made. Of the 45 accidents, one caused a fatality and 22 resulted in injuries to 53 persons.

It is also interesting to note that among accident causes, speeding topped the list; drunken driving, second; failure to stop for stop sign, third, and defective equipment fourth.

Thoughtful consideration of this summary clearly indicates the way in which accidents, and arrests, can be materially reduced in this vicinity. All that is needed is careful, sober, competent driving at reasonable speed. The highway patrol is doing commendable work in reducing traffic hazards in this and other Ohio communities.

Getting Ready for Winter

ARRIVAL of October means that winter is not far away—and winter is something to get ready for. This includes buying new warm clothes or repairing and cleaning old ones. It means that the time has arrived to lay in a supply of fuel and it also means such things as fixing that leaky spot in the roof that has been neglected during the dry summer. And finally, to the wise householder, it means taking special precautions against fire.

Have your furnace inspected—and have that inspection done by somebody who knows what to look for. It's no work for an amateur. Have needed repairs effected at once. See that chimneys and flues are properly cleaned. Hard-pressed heating plants in bad order are prolific sources of home fires.

Winter means that you'll use lights oftener. Exposed electric wiring should be checked. Pay special attention to lamp cords under rugs and around baseboard—they fray in time, and when that happens a short circuit may occur. Electricity, mishandled, is one of fire's potent allies.

Go through your whole house and get rid of any and all accumulations—old clothes, old papers and magazines, collections of rags, etc. They make a fine starting place for fire—and spontaneous ignition isn't so rare a phenomenon as you may think.

Lower Cost of Living

AS AMERICANS embark on a new and huge campaign of national defense, to be ready for any foreign peril that may threaten, there is one material factor that is reassuring. It is the comparative cheapness of our cost of living.

A current report of the [illegible] Board shows that the trend lately has been [illegible] from a level which was already much [illegible]. Foods are found to be 27.6 per cent [illegible]. A year ago, clothing 26.6 per cent less, fuel and light [illegible] per cent less.

When 1923 is [illegible] it is found that the all-round purchasing [illegible] in August of this year was [illegible] and [illegible] is a little higher than that now.

Santa Claus Getting Ready

RETAILERS, it is said, are [illegible] toys in large quantities. They expect [illegible] best Christmas from the trade point of view since 1929. Dolls will run from 50 to 75 per cent ahead of last year and factories that make wheel goods are already working [illegible]. Electric trains are also ahead in orders already placed.

It is fine to have Santa Claus feeling easy in his mind once more, and in position to distribute Christmas gifts more liberally.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

SAN JUAN, P. R. Almost everyone who comes to San Juan buys a lottery ticket. It's one of the things to do, like casting your lei into the sea when you leave Honolulu, or sampling a Ramos gin fiz when you visit New Orleans. Furthermore, this is the only place under the American flag where lotteries are legal, so you can indulge the whim without experiencing any twinges of conscience.

You buy your ticket almost anywhere the notion strikes you. On almost every corner old women and little boys offer them for sale. In bulk they resemble sheets of Chinese laundry tickets. The hawkers walk along the street crying something in Spanish, probably "Lottery ticket - buy a ticket today." If you are in the mood you can pay over a buck and take your chance.

* * *

THE PROFITS from these lotteries go, it is stated, toward the upkeep of tuberculosis hospitals. They have regular fortnightly drawings. Sometimes the prizes are $15,000. Four times a year they have super drawings, and on these occasions the grand prize is $75,000.

There is nothing phoney in the way the drawings are made—no double-dealing or fast manipulation of lucky tickets. The drawings are public and these are held in a second-story hall. Benches for spectators are arranged on three sides of the hall. On the fourth side are arranged the official lottery jurors, whose presence is a certificate of fair play and who are there to guarantee that the drawings are conducted with dignity and in a forthright manner.

In the center of the hall are two huge globes—one holding the numbers of the tickets that have been sold, the other the pellets on which the prizes are printed.

Both of these globes perpetually revolve on an axle to insure a constant and thorough stirring up of the tickets. At each turn of the globes a small aperture is automatically opened and a single pellet falls out. One boy immediately scoops up the lottery ticket and reads it. Another lad picks up the prize pellet and reads that.

* * *

SUPPOSE you hold ticket number 23. As it drops out, suppose another ticket that says $20 drops simultaneously from the other globe. Then you would win $20. It might easily be $600 or even the grand prize of $15,000. That's the way it works. Newspaper reporters are always present, jotting down figures. Usually there is a throng packed in the street, waiting for the winners.

I imagine that a government official—a gentleman from the Federal income department—is there waiting for the winners too.

But San Juan, as a rule, takes its lottery drawings in stride. The fortnightly ones are too commonplace—to everyone except those who hold winning tickets. But the big ones the $75,000—that is a different story. Then, even the statues in the squares turn their eyes towards the lottery hall.

Approaching Marriage Told At Party at Hoffman Home

FORTY-FIVE friends of Miss Willamine Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hoffman, 461 Wayne street, learned of her approaching marriage to Wilbert Cleckner, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cleckner, 432 Shepard road, yesterday evening during a party which her mother gave at the family home. The honoree's sisters, Misses Marjorie and Marion Hoffman, were the associate hostesses.

When luncheon was served early in the evening, the guests were seated at a long table, centered with a large engagement ring set on a satin cushion, which had the wedding date, Oct. 27, printed on it in gold. This ring was carved from wood and gilded, and it had a lighted set. All of the table appointments and floral pieces throughout the home were carried out in yellow and white.

Open church will be observed when the wedding is solemnized at 3 o'clock at the Park Avenue Baptist church with Rev. Albert J. Linder officiating. Miss Hoffman will be attended by her sister, Marjorie, as maid-of-honor, and Marian as bridesmaid. Mr. Cleckner has chosen his brother, Dale Cleckner, to be his best man, and ushers will be John Hoffman, brother of the bride from Cambridge, and Noland Meridith. Both Mr. Cleckner and his bride-elect are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school and employes are the Sears Roebuck and company.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, October 6.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is propitious for affairs of church and state and for educational cultural and legal aspirations. Otherwise there seem to be deep undercurrents, with pitfalls, snares, schemes and all manner of subtleties and treacheries to cope with by vigilance, shrewdness and correspondent sauvity. Be wise with funds and wary with signatures.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy some legal, professional, cultural or spiritual benefits during the year. But generally there are signs of deep-laid plots, schemes, treacheries, intrigues and duplicities calling for similar subtlety and craft to cope with. But in this be careful not to overdo or to be dragged in deeper into confusion and betrayal. Be alert to all machinations, safeguard funds and affix signatures with much scrutiny.

A child born on this day may have many keen talents, deep insight and probably curious "hunches" or intuitive guidance.

For Monday, October 7.

Monday's astrological forecast is for an exceptionally lively and happy day in all concerning domestic, social, artistic and affectional relations. The latter particularly promises unusual interest, since frequently this aspect bespeaks courtship and marriage of most felicitious aspect. However, this high state of excitement and anticipation should not be negatived by petty setbacks and annoyances nor married by impetuosity or other rash action. It is a day for youth to be joyous.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a most delightful year in the private relations—artistic, social, domestic and particularly in the emotional life. There is prospect of courtship or marriage of most felicitious and gratifying phase, although even this might be jeopardized by rash, hasty and tumultuous conduct. Refrain from sudden and impetuous acts should certain delays, obstacles or excess outlays of funds arise. These are trivial beside the joys indicated.

ATTY. GONGWER SPEAKS BEFORE FEDERATION

Discusses Perils of Democracy at Meeting of Women's Group; Tea Served Following Business Session at Club.

ATTY. J. HOWARD GONGWER spoke on the thought-provoking subject, "What Every Woman Over Twenty-One" should know yesterday afternoon at the first business meeting and directors tea of the Mansfield Federation of Women, which was held at the Women's Club at 2:30 p. m.

Gongwer told his audience of more than 50 women the fate awaiting democracies unless we get over being soft.

In discussing the ills of democracy Gongwer pointed out that we have never provided an education in democracy for our immigrants. "The answer to the situation," he said, "lies in education."

Quoting from Plato the speaker indicated that the four characteristics of an ideal republic are wisdom, courage, temperance and justice. As an introduction to his remarks he stated that we must face the existing facts, and that it is not a question of physical preparedness so much as a question of the spirit of the people.

Continuing the discussion the Mansfield attorney explained that the truly democratic idea is young. He then cited the examples of what has happened to every republic in the history of man—they all fell before the invaders when they become soft, weak and decadent.

Just preceding Atty. Gongwer's talk Herbert Slough, head of the citizens' committee for the one mill operating levy, spoke briefly on the proposed bond issue.

Following the routine business reports, Mrs. Joseph Johnston gave the report of the welfare committee, and Mrs. Anna Knote spoke on the dental clinic book-review movie programs which will begin at the Ohio theater Oct. 16.

Tickets are in the hands of Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. James Bailey and Mrs. Carl Henkel.

At the close of the program tea was served from a long table in the dining room centered with a low arrangement of dark red dahlias and lighted yellow tapers. Mrs. Lester Redding, Federation president, presided at the table.

The next meeting will be a lecture-luncheon at 11 a. m. at the Ohio theater with Rene Dussaq speaking on "A South American's View of South America." Luncheon will follow at the Club. This is the first program of the season by a guest speaker.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I expected an immediate—and enthusiastic—answer from Philip Veritzen, but to my surprise he hesitated for almost a second before replying to my question.

"If I consulted only my inclination," he finally said with an odd little air of deliberation, "I should ask you to go to Olga at once and urge her to see me as soon as possible. But—I must consult my judgment and that counsels me to talk to you and to Lillian first, if you both have time to grant me a short interview. You both, I trust, are my friends, and you have the wisest heads and most sympathetic hearts of any women I know, save, of course, Olga herself. And it is about her I wish to speak to you. Will you and Lillian permit me to open my burdened soul to you?"

Why must he be so tiresomely pedantic? I asked myself with irritation.

And I also wanted to tell him that while Lillian was his stanch friend, I was not as long as his treatment of Mary had not been satisfactorily explained. Lillian might give him the benefit of the doubt, and believe he had been actuated only by a desire to prove his daughter-in-law's histronic qualifications during his grueling test of her, but I was more skeptical.

However, I kept my true sentiments under control, and answered him in a fashion I knew Lillian, his stanch and true friend of many years, would approve.

"Fortunately both Lillian and I have a few leisure minutes before dinner," I said, "and I know she will be as willing as I to listen to anything you have to say to us."

"I never can be sufficiently grateful to you," he began flamboyantly.

"Don't try," I told him flippantly. "This is a very good time to forget the ordinary amenities of life. Now, in order to save time, suppose I send you Otto first, then tell Olga that you wish to see her—at what time?"

"A half hour from now," he said tentatively. "Will that be all right?"

"If my father agrees," I said, "and I think he will. Then I'll come back to Lillian's room—I was coming out of it when I met you, and you will remember it, I am sure."

"Perfectly," he answered.

"Good!" I returned, keeping my voice matter-of-fact. "When Otto has finished making you comfortable, send him down to that room, and we will come over here at once. I will speak to my father, and see if this arrangement suits him."

"You are so good," he said, apparently unable to curtail his flamboyant speech.

"Only decent," I told him. "And now, if you will excuse me I will send Otto to you."

I hurried out of the door before he could thank me again, and passing Lillian's door on my way to the back stairway to the kitchen where I knew I should find Otto, I saw that it was ajar, and that she was standing just inside it, evidently waiting for me.

"Come down to the kitchen with me," I whispered. "I need you."

"I'll reserve comment," she said with a grin as we came to the kitchen door. "I'm virtually speechless now."

We found Otto entrenched at a corner table behind an immense plate of soup, and beaming his appreciation of it. But when I had told him my errand, he sprang to his feet, ruefully pushing back his unfinished portion. Katie, however, was as quick as he, and with a well directed thrust of her hand put him back in his chair again.

"You feenish dot," she said inexorably. "It won't take you two meenits, und I guess dot old boonch of soup greens won't die eef he vait a leetle."

CHAPTER IV

Jocelyn hung up her telephone and sat quite still, feeling a little sick. She had done all she could do, and it was no use. Now there were blank hours ahead. The Booths were notoriously dilatory; they idled about in their studio for half the day; they might get around to telephoning Kent at about three; they might put it off until later.

They lived in an untidy apartment back of some old buildings on Post street; the studio jutted into a garage and had two rooms that impinged upon a flat occupied by the French laundry people who worked downstairs. It was a sunless, gloomy place in the daytime, but Jocelyn had had some wonderful happy evenings there, when she and Una had cooked the dinner, the men had poured red wine, played on the old piano, and done quick sketches of the girls' heads. Lilian hated the place and in a quiet way disliked the Booths and their "influence" on Kent. But that made Jocelyn love it all the more, and there had been happy times when she had known that Kent had liked it the better for his wife's avoidance of it.

Well, those times were over. But something—surely something was left?

Why hadn't Una said: "Come right up here, Jocelyn; we'll get hold of Kent and make him do something?" Why hadn't she said that? It would have been so simple, then, Jocelyn, who knew the state of the Booth's finances, could have stopped for a few pounds of sausages, for a couple of pink cold boiled crabs, for Red's favorite white-iced devil's-food cake. She could have joined them and conspired with them, and it would all have been safe and companionable and happy. If Kent evaded them all three, then they would have company in misery at least.

As it was, she walked home from the office nervously, restlessly, feeling that unless something happened to bring him into the scene during the next two days she would go out of her senses. She stayed in her room, waiting for a telephone call. It did not come, and at four o'clock feeling faint and weary and desolate, she followed a sudden impulse, dressed herself and started to walk to the Booths' studio. She would go in on them carelessly, explain that she had an errand in their neighborhood to do.

* * *

The sudden thought that Kent might be there made her heart jump with fear and joy and brought color to her cheeks. Everything would be heaven; everything would be utterly blissful and right. Kent might look up from his favorite chair with his lazy smile and say, "We need you, Joy. We're all going to Covey's to cook supper."

Or he might say that they would have to dine in town; he could not get away in time to go to Piedmont. Suppose they dined at some Italian place on Columbus avenue. Then tomorrow they could get an early start for Covey's, and have lunch there on the porch in the winter sunshine, looking down at the great panorama of the cities and the bay and the far blue mountains of Marin.

It would be the last of Kent for a long time. The last of him for all time, in one way. When he had lived in Portland for a while with Lilian's people, Lilian's old friends, Lilian's influences continually about him, he would not be the same person any more. Kent was impressionable, emotional, changeable. No, she'd never have Kent back. But this good-bye time with him she must have, and then she could be good, then she could go on.

"We've never done anything wrong, God, let it go right just this one time!" she prayed, as she walked along.

There was nobody at the Booths' studio. The shock of it stunned Jocelyn. Then she quietly went away.

But which way now, and why? It was twenty minutes before five o'clock. Jocelyn, unconscious of where she walked or what she passed, went home again. When she got to Mrs. Buck's it was quite dark. The house smelled, as it always did, of boiling sprouts and furniture oil and furnace warmth.

"Jocelyn" said Phyllis Buck, in the hall. "There was a telephone message for you."

Jocelyn stood quite still. Everything inside her—heart, mind and soul stood still.

"It was from Mrs. Johnson," said Phyllis. "They're away this week-end and if you're going to Sausalito you can have their car. It's in the garage."

"Oh. Thanks."

"Phyllis!" called her mother. "Did you give Jocelyn her message?"

"I just did, Mom."

"I mean the one that came just after she went out. From that Mrs. Booth."

Jocelyn, halfway up the stairs, stood stricken to stone again. There had been a message from Una, then? What? What?

"Your friend Mrs. Booth telephoned," Mrs. Buck said heavily, appearing stout and wrappered in her bedroom door, "and said they were going out of town and she would telephone you tomorrow afternoon or Monday."

"Thanks" Jocelyn said proceeding upward to her room. She could not analyze the meaning of it; she was too confused. She went in and shut her door and sat on her bed. They had gone to Piedmont, then to Covey's? Hadn't they tried for her? Hadn't they wanted her? If she had been here, Una hardly could have telephoned her without including her in the plan.

* * *

They'd gone over to Piedmont, and she'd missed them. The bitterness of it swept over her like a vertigo. She wished it were not too late to go across the bay to her aunt; the distraction of the big family, however unsympathetic to her mood, would still have been a tonic.

Quite suddenly she began to pack an overnight bag, there was a twenty-minute ferry service to Piedmont, and she could get a taxi to take her up to Covey's. She would find them all there with a big fire of logs blazing in the low cabin room, and dinner not half ready. She could go in laughing triumphantly, "I had your message, Una, and decided that since this devil is really leaving us Monday . . ."

The joy of getting there, of really seeing him and hearing his voice and answering his nonsense! She had been following him, hungering for him for so long!

Quickly, calmly, she packed. It was good to be determined, to know exactly what she was going to do. Phyllis, seventeen, and a great admirer of the beautiful older girl, came into the room.

"Oh, you are going across the bay? What kind of a car is it?"

Jocelyn looked at her, not comprehending.

"I mean the Johnson's car, that they said you could have."

"Oh?" Jocelyn had forgotten that detail. Of course, she had a car. She could drive straight from Bush street over the bridge to the cabin in Piedmont; that made it all the more explainable, all the simpler. "I had Ann Johnson's car, and I thought I'd come over and see what you all were up to."

Fifteen minutes later she was on her way. She stopped at a big market, bought a dozen doughnuts, dark rich doughnuts, chocolate bars, a dozen enormous golden oranges. She bought an evening paper, and hummed with delight and triumph as the little car crossed the gigantic bridge across the dark waters of the bay.

* * *

Once on the other side she had merely to drive steadily along the brightly lighted magnificent roads to Oakland, on toward the Piedmont hills. Undulating Oakland avenue, straight ahead, and then Coolidge until you came to the school and then past the Tunnel road and up a slanting cut.

She leaned from the car under the bright lights of an oil station.

"I think I'm off my road. Which way is Wickson street?"

The white-clad young man got out a map, after observing, "You have me there," they looked at it together. He said: "Has find those roads pretty muddy. We had a regular cloudburst here today."

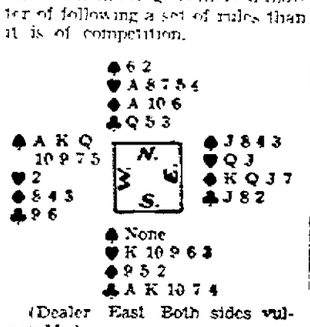
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T MAKE IT EASY

NO DELIGHT, for some players, surpasses that of crowding their opponents into a wrong contract—too high, too low, or even the wrong declaration. They watch for chances to impede the smooth progress of their foes bidding and seize upon each one like a cat pouncing on a mouse. When they do that with good judgment, they can make things mighty difficult for smooth, easy-going players to whom bridge is more a matter of following a set of rules than it is of competition.



(Dealer East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥
4 ♠	5 ♥

West gained the sort of victory he likes the most in the course of a three bid, by losing the only table in the entire duplicate tournament that did not produce a small slam bid for North and South. North could do nothing over that except what he did, bid the game and after East edged in with 4-Spades, there was nothing South could do but try 5-Hearts, unless he passed, which might give up a probable game. When the bided grand slam was made, West was fit to be tied in his glee.

At other tables West bid only 1-Spade over the 1-Heart and the rest was easy for his opponents. North now could show his strength with 3-Hearts and even though East made his then natural call of 3-Spades, South was able to invite slam gently with 4-Clubs. West then went to 4-Spades but North cue-bid with 5-Diamonds, whereupon South felt strong enough to try 6-Spades.

WINNER LOSES

$1,500 Bet Wrapped In Towel Changes to Paper.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(AP)—John Dwyer won a 15 to 1 bet on yesterday's Detroit - Cincinnati World series game and yet lost $1,500.

He explained the paradox to police like this:

He made the bet with one of three strangers. The stake was wrapped in a handkerchief and returned to him, or so Dwyer thought.

When Dwyer opened the handkerchief, he found it contained paper towels.

Since Detroit won 7 to 4, Dwyer technically won $22,500. Actually, however, he lost his own $1,500—that is, unless police nab the missing trio.

AID WAR CHEST

recalled that in 1938 the German ambassador to China made such an attempt in vain.

3—Germany promises to exercise to the fullest extent her diplomatic and political influence to pave the way toward a friendly understanding, including a non-aggression pact, between Japan and Soviet Russia.

4—A tentative date is fixed for Japan to enter the war against Britain and participate in the "triple blitzkrieg" by striking in the Orient while Germany intensifies its blows against Britain and a combined Nazi-Fascist offensive is launched in Egypt and the Near East.

It was said that the impression prevails here that China might be ready to accept German mediation of the war with Japan if Britain continued to keep closed the Burma road, over which war supplies move to Chungking.

The British, however, are scheduled to re-open the road on Oct. 17 and as a result of this, as well as further prospective British and American aid to China, the Chungking government is expected to continue the war.

Diplomats here continued to believe that in the long run the new triple alliance might be directed against Russia. They argued that Japan can offer Russia no important advantages and that the Soviet has a "community of interest" with the United States and Britain in the Orient rather than with Japan.

AMERICA ARMS FOR ARGUMENT

Shuns Words as Weapon In Dispute With Japan On 'Status Quo.'

(D., Mont.), "that the people of the United States have no desire to go to war with Japan or anyone else, but the Japanese rulers will not be able to intimidate the United States by any such statements attributed to them.

"If Mr. Hitler, Mr. Mussolini and Japan want to prevent a world war, the thing for them to do is to stop stealing other countries' territory."

Said Chairman Bloom (D., N. Y.) of the house foreign affairs committee:

"If correctly reported, the statement made by Foreign Minister Matsuoka is a very rash one."

"The statement is certainly startling," said Sen. Clark (D., Mo.), a member of the senate foreign relations committee. "Of course the so-called 'Axis' treaty does not contain anything that any intelligent citizen has not known for a long time existed in secret.

"Japan is too cowardly to pursue her policy in the east without the support of the other powers.

"The foreign minister of Japan can be well assured that whatever the difference of opinion as to the desirability of our active participation in foreign wars, that the people of this country are absolutely unanimous in our determination not to allow American rights to be infringed upon in any quarter of the globe.

"I think that the International News Service has rendered a very great service to this country in bringing about this official account of Japan's intentions so that we may be prepared to cope with whatever should develop."

Tigers Running Out of Hurlers In World Series

Manager Del Baker Nominates Trout to Face Cincy In Fourth Game Today.

By GAYLE TALBOT

DETROIT—(AP)—The slugging Detroit Tigers, though leading the Cincinnati Reds two victories to one in this topsy-turvy world series after yesterday's 7 to 4 triumph here behind Tommy Bridges, were running short of pitchers as the two league champions clashed in the fourth game of the big play-off at Briggs' stadium today.

* * *

Manager Del Baker of the Tigers indicated he would dig deep down into the bag and nominate Paul (Dizzy) Trout, one of the past season's biggest pitching disappointments, to try to run the count to 3-1 over the Reds and make it possible to wind up the argument in the fifth game here tomorrow.

* * *

Trout was a gamble, but one that Baker practically was forced to take. He either had to send Dizzy to the hill or bring big Buck Newsom back into the conflict after only two days of rest. The Reds, with Gene Thompson, their brilliant sophomore, ready to make his bid, appeared to have an excellent chance of squaring the series.

Thompson was given an awful going-over by the Yankees in the third game of last year's world series, when Charlie Keller banged two home runs off him and Joe DiMaggio and Bill Dickey each slapped one round-tripper before Manager Bill McKechnie could get him out of there. But players who batted against Thompson in the latter part of the season just past say he is a vastly improved flinger and likely as not to stand the Tigers on their collective heads.

It is doubtful any world series ever produced reversals of form more marked and puzzling than has the present one in three turbulent days. The Tigers punched the Reds right out of the park in the opener, and it looked like a cakewalk for them. Thursday Bucky Walters handcuffed the American leaguers with three scattered hits, and one of those was fluky. And then, yesterday, the Tigers exploded again, breaking up the game with a four-run assault on Jim Turner in the seventh inning.

The Reds' infield, the slickest in the National league, has looked ragged and uncertain of itself. Shortstop Billy Myers again delayed a throw yesterday that almost certainly would have cut off a run at the plate. Detroit's ancient inner works on the other hand, has cavorted around like a set of three-year-olds, and Third Baseman Pinkie Higgins, in particular, threatens to be the outstanding star of the playoff. He made one stop yesterday that was a classic, and it was his terrific homer into the upper stands that drove Turner from the mound.

At that, it strictly was a question of which of the two old Tennessee boys—Turner or Tommy Bridges—would get clouted out first. Neither figured to go the route, and the only reason Bridges stuck to the finish was that the Tigers got to Turner and piled up a 7 to 2 lead before Bridges began to show serious wear. McKechnie took a flyer on Turner, similar to the one Baker appeared ready to take on the eccentric Trout today, and it proved a bad guess.

For six innings Turner worked slowly and effectively on the Tigers. A couple of singles by McCosky and Gehringer produced a run in the fourth as Greenberg rapped into a double play, but, all in all, the milkman had done a good job up to the time it happened to him. Looking back on it, he should have refused to pitch the seventh inning.

Greenberg opened with a line single. Rudy York followed him with a knock that went approximately a mile high and just did clear the screen in left field. In fact, Jimmy Ripple thought he was going to catch it until the last second, it was that close. Turner probably suspected about then that the Tigers were getting wise to his curves.

Anyhow, the next batter, Bruce Campbell, pounded out another single. And up came Higgins. And he really hit one. His drive still was going onward and upward when it shot into the top stand, just inside the left foul line. That was all for Turner, and everyone knew the ball game was over, for the Cincinnatis are not the kind of club that overcomes 5 to 1 leads. Higgins, incidentally, drove across the Tigers' last run with a double in the eighth off Reliefer Joe Beggs.

* * *

Bill Werber, hustling third baseman, led the Reds' 10-hit attack on Bridges with a double and a pair of singles. Ernie Lombardi finally got into the series and made a double his first time up, but the big catcher still was limping on his sprained ankle and was relieved by Tom Baker before it was over.

* * *

Though McKechnie cast doubt, Lombardi was a good bet to start behind the plate again today, because the Reds need his bat if they hope to carry the series back to Cincinnati Monday.

Rams Suffer Fourth Defeat From Orrville

Madison High Gridders Drop 27 to 0 Decision.

ORRVILLE — If the Madison high school Rams had any idea of breaking into the win column last night they will have to postpone it for at least another week.

* * *

The Rams lost their fourth straight football game of the 1940 season here under the lights to Orrville high school by a 27 to 0 score.

* * *

The two teams fought on even terms for the first two periods with neither club being able to score, but Orrville came back in the third period to score its first touchdown and add three more in the final period.

Orrville's first touchdown came in the last minute of the third quarter, and the second came after eight minutes of play in the final stanza.

* * *

Three of Orrville's tallies were scored by Bilderbach, one on a 40-yard run, with Tredway scoring the other touchdown.

Tredway, McDougall and Bradford scored the extra points on line plunges and left and right end runs. A drop kick for extra point by Denbow was wide.

You can choose from a number of practical models in this smaller gauge, at Yuncker's, from the trim, streamlined Winchester pump gun, to the new Stevens combination gun, of .22 caliber and 410 gauge, making a convenient rifle and shotgun combination.

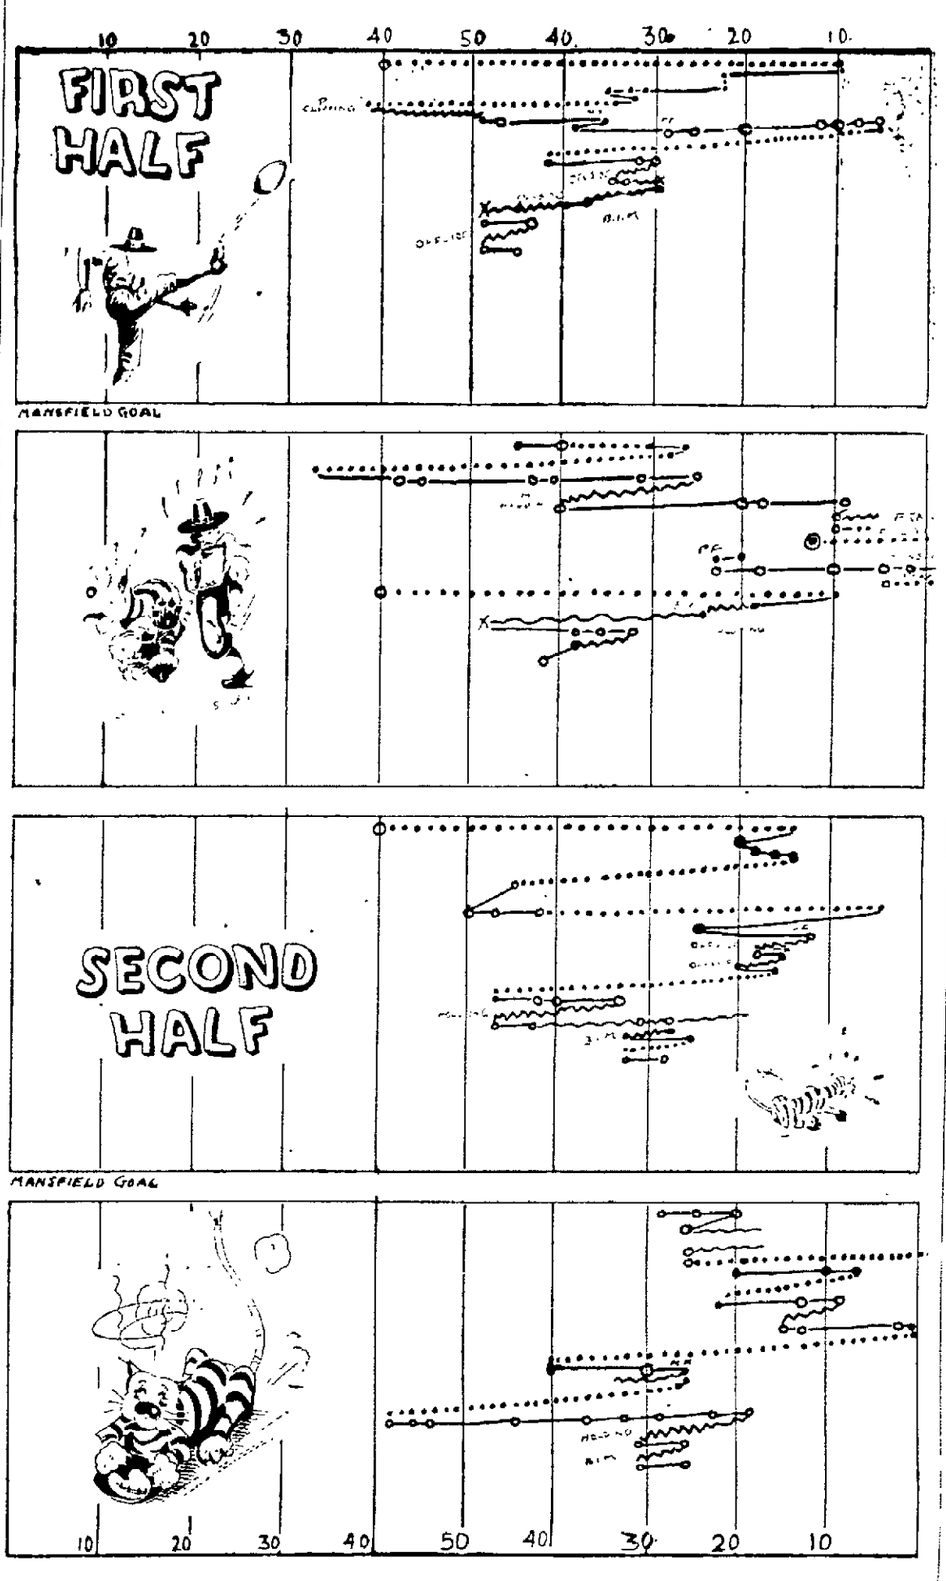
He can't run with the hounds, of course, but he waits for them in kennels and goes over their coat for burrs and other foreign objects. He stops fights quickly, too, by jumping on the dogs' backs and shaking them.

How Tygers Beat Quakers



New Philadelphia Band Hold Grid Spotlight

The New Philadelphia band stole a portion of the spotlight between halves of the Mansfield high-New Philadelphia game at Stadium field last night with a fine performance. . . . When the red-uniformed players marched on the field, two youngsters, Lois Hurst and Virgina Miller, danced and brought the fans to their feet cheering . . . Louie Byers, drum major, did a flag waving stunt shortly afterwards . . . According to reports he is the only high school drum major in the state who does the trick.

Tygers Mark Up 7 to 0 Victory Over Grid Foes

Mansfield Offense Fails to Click When Club Reaches Scoring Territory.

By CHARLES MARTIN, News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD HIGH had its fourth consecutive gridiron triumph safely tucked away today—but it had a scare before accomplishing the feat.

Favored to dust off a weak New Philadelphia high club in pregame rating, the Mansfield Tygers saw their offense fall apart as they registered a 7 to 0 victory at Stadium field last night under the arcs before a gathering estimated by school officials at 4,000.

New Philadelphia, which dropped a 54 to 0 decision to Lorain last week, came back with a stubborn defense to throttle the Tygers' attack.

True, penalties slowed down the Mansfield attack, but on several occasions the Tygers failed to employ their usual potent drive. Seven fumbles—the most they have had in an affray this season—also retarded the offense.

Mansfield roared toward the Quaker goal line six times, but only once—in the second frame—did the club penetrate pay dirt.

After battling through the opening quarter in which one drive bogged down on the New Philadelphia five, the Tygers smashed back to score on a 22-yard drive midway in the second chapter.

Paul Dietzel set the stage for the score when he recovered Tony Fabiano's fumble, Martin Henke, in three plays, carried the pigskin to the Quaker two and on the next play Jim Templeton raced around right end for the marker. Adam Brandt, who attempted a field goal earlier in the stanza, split the uprights for the extra point from placement.

Coach Paul Synder's athletes failed to accomplish much in the third, although play was in New Philadelphia territory the entire period. Mansfield chalked up one first down in that quarter.

At the opening of the last period Mansfield was on the Quaker's 27 and pushed to the 20. Here the Tygers lost five yards and Henke tried twice to connect on aerials for a score, but failed. New Philadelphia took the ball on the 20 after a Mansfield punt went over the goal line.

In three plays the Quakers fell back to their own seven and a poor punt was taken by Mansfield on the losers' 22. This time the Tygers drove to the two only to lose the ball on downs.

Near the end of the game a Quaker punt went out on the Mansfield 42 and the Tygers pounded their way to the invaders' 17 before penalties pushed them back to the 30. As the gun ended the game the Tygers were on the New Philly 25.

New Philadelphia failed to cause the Tygers any trouble with their offensive tactics. Not once did they reach the Tyger side of the gridiron. The Quakers went to their own 38 once in the opening stanza.

Mentor Snyder's proteges registered 12 first downs while New Philadelphia was making two. Mansfield piled up 229 yards from rushing and the Quakers showed a gain of two yards.

Mansfield lost 17 yards from running plays and New Philly lost 27. The Tygers attempted nine forwards and completed two for a gain of 16 yards.

Elroy "Lightning" Jones and Jim Templeton were the only Mansfield backs who consistently smashed through the Quaker defense for gains. Smith was impressive on his end runs.

Mansfield, which has been concentrating on an aerial attack most of the week, failed to show much improvement over previous games. All the tosses were wide of their target and on most of the passes the passer was rushed.

Shelby's first score came in the first period on a 40-yard run by Bonecutter on return of a Bucyrus punt. Daugherty failed to kick the extra point.

The Whippets' final score came in the third period when Laubie again carried the ball over from the seven-yard line. A 58-yard Shelby drive brought the ball into scoring position. Daugherty's kick for the extra point was good.

* * *

Canode scored the first Bucyrus touchdown in the first period when he knifed through tackle from the two-yard stripe. Gebhardt's kick for point was good.

* * *

The final Bucyrus tally came in the third period and was also scored by Canode after a 60-yard drive brought the ball to the 14, from where he carried the ball over tackle. Gebhardt's place kick was again good.

Bluejays Lose To Red Birds

Loudonville Scores In Last Minute to Win.

BELLVILLE — An Etzwiler-to-Swank aerial in the last minute of the fourth period gave the Loudonville high Red Birds a thrilling 9 to 6 grid victory over Bellville high here yesterday afternoon.

* * *

The Bluejays, fighting to mark up their third victory of the season, staved off the determined Red Birds until the final chapter when the winners opened their touchdown march from near mid-field.

* * *

Loudonville forged ahead in the third when Etzwiler drop kicked a field goal from the Bellville 20. His kick sailed squarely through the uprights.

That advantage didn't last long for the Bellville club came back and Swank raced 50 yards for the game's first touchdown a few minutes later.

He turned the trick on an end-around, and raced through the entire Loudonville team. Keiser's attempt for the extra point from placement was blocked by the Red Birds' forward wall.

The Loudonville touchdown pass came on third down and it traveled about 10 yards. Etzwiler tried to add the point with a drop kick, but it was wide and low. Bellville has won two and lost one and tied one.

STOCK LEADERS RAMBLE OVER UNEVEN ROUTE

Backlogs of Unfilled Orders In Durable Goods Gives Trade Encouragement.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK -- Stock market leaders rambled over a slightly uneven route in today's early trading.

Financial quarters studied the summary of the department of commerce disclosing backlogs of unfilled orders in durable goods industries reflected the cumulative effect of defense requirements by jumping 82 per cent over the like 1939 month.

Shipments increased 9 per cent from the preceding August while no appreciable extension of inventories was in evidence.

Noted was the survey of the federal reserve board showing the country's department store sales in the week ended Sept. 28 held about even with the corresponding period last year and, for the latest four weeks, were up 7 per cent. Year-to-year improvement last week was reported by the districts of New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta and Dallas.
